

Mike

Research Scientist from Somerset

What do you do?

I package medicines inside extremely small parcels that can be delivered to different areas of the body where they are needed.

Why do you do it?

Science impacts the world around us in ways we don't even realise – getting a glimpse into this world is absolutely amazing and you are always learning something new and exciting.

Where are you from?

I grew up in Kingsbury Episcopi, Somerset

How did you become a scientist?

I studied GCSE Triple Science at school and really enjoyed it. I decided to study Chemistry later at university.
